

THE WYCHWOOD PLAYERS

The Wychwood Players scored a big hit with the Richard Harris comedy "Outside Edge" at the New Beaconsfield Hall. The Saturday performance was completely sold out and the talented cast responded to the happy atmosphere with a fine piece of ensemble playing which brought laughs over and over again.

The pivotal roles of Miriam and Roger were played faultlessly by Anne Hilling and Phillip Croxson while Emily Lewis and Rob Gorton provoked much hilarity with their portrayal of Maggie and Kevin.

Jonathon Willson seemed to revel in the role of the slightly seedy Dennis, and Charles Marshall and Annie Wise brought many human touches to their parts as Bob and Ginnie.

The youngest performers, Alex Vulliamy and Tim Harvey were extremely effective as the naive 'fashion-plate' and the arrogant public schoolboy.

The play was brilliantly directed by Dudley Thompson and the production had the pace and timing of a well-hit 'six' to provide a convincing win for The Wychwood Players and aspirations for a longer run.

The umpire.
